

March 18, 2011

Isabel Weber, seventh grade student at Parker Junior High School in Flossmoor School District 161, won the school level competition of the National Geographic Bee.

This is the second year that Isabel has won the competition that qualifies her to participate at the state level of the National Geographic Bee.

The State Geographic Bee will be held on Friday, April 1, 2011, at the College of DuPage.

State qualifiers compete in an oral competition, and one winner from each state or U.S. territory will advance to the national finals on May 24 and 25 at the National Geographic headquarters in Washington, D.C.

###

Isabel Weber, winner of the school level competition of the National Geographic Bee, is pictured at Parker Junior High School in Flossmoor.